

Tartar Teen Talk

By Pat Adams

"More for '64" is the slogan for the new year at Torrance High. The theme will be carried out in studies, activities, and programs on the campus during the year. Jan. 6 was back-to-school day for the Tartar student body, and a quick glance at the calendar tells all only a few weeks remain in the semester.

Yesterday was the deadline for all petitions for study body and class offices to be submitted. "The right of free discussion and the right to criticize in a free society carry with them the obligations as well . . . obligations to serve. Talk is cheap; action is the real measure of the citizen's contribution. Whether he be a member of a campus community or some other group in a free society, it makes little difference, we get the kind of government we deserve." So ran the last call for nominees this week.

While most students were celebrating the New Year and enjoying the last days of their Christmas vacation, the Tartar basketball team carried fast and furious action to opponents in the Compton Tournament. Tuesday night, the Tartars battled for the consolation championship in tourney playoffs.

Tomorrow, the Tartars will meet Aviation High School in their own gym for the first league game of the season. The game starts at 8 o'clock, so come on, Tartars!

CONGRATULATIONS are in order for the Senior Class. The Seniors walked off with first place in the canned food drive and the other classes had to watch, despite high participation in all classes. More than 2,400 cans were donated to needy families in the area to help make Christmas a little happier for them.

The high number of cans collected set a record at THS. "Thought for the day . . . How many days until Easter vacation?"

Bert M. Lynn, president of the Torrance Board of Education, will talk to elementary school principals tomorrow morning when the principals convene for their regular breakfast meeting.

Lynn will discuss the relationship of school board members to school administrators in an informal session. The meeting will be held at 7 a.m. at Caesar's Restaurant.

VA Income Cards Due By Jan. 31

Veterans or veterans' survivors needing help in completing the annual VA income questionnaire have been advised to call the Torrance office of the Los Angeles County Service Officer.

Loren Heft, county service officer, said the questionnaires must be returned before Jan. 31, 1964, to avoid any delay in pension payments.

The Torrance office is open Thursdays and Fridays. It is located at 3231 Torrance Blvd., Room 202. Heft may be reached by calling FA 8-3310, extension 53.
